The image displays three sequential mobile app screens illustrating the user journey for joining a waiting list for an event.

Home Screen: The user is presented with a list of events. The first event, "Dance Party", is highlighted. It shows the event title, organizer ("Posted By: coolguy123"), a brief description, time, location, registration period, and entry limit. The event status is "Open", and the user's current status is "Not In Waiting List". A button indicates "0 PEOPLE IN WAITING LIST". Below this, another event "Hamburger Eating Contest" is shown with similar details and a "Not In Waiting List" status. A third event, "Music Release Party", is also visible with a "Not In Waiting List" status. At the bottom, a navigation bar includes "Home", "Search", "Profile", and "My Events".

Clicked Event Screen: Upon clicking an event, the user is taken to a detailed view. The "Dance Party" event is shown with full details: description, time, location, registration period, and entry limit. The event status is "Open", and the user's status is "Not In Waitlist". A "Join Waitlist" button is prominently displayed. Below it is a "Back" button. The bottom navigation bar remains the same.

Joined The Waiting List: After clicking "Join Waitlist", the user is informed: "You have been added to the waitlist." The event status changes to "In Waitlist", and the button now says "Leave Waitlist". The "Back" button is still present. The bottom navigation bar is consistent with the previous screens.

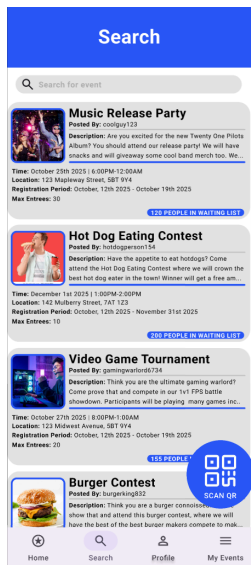

Clicking on an event:
User can tap on event to view more details about the event and join the event

User given option to:

- Close the details of the events, which takes them back to the list of events in home
- Join Waiting List which adds them to the waiting list of events and places the event in "My Events"

Clicking "Leave Waiting List" opts them out of the waiting list and removes the event from "My Events". The button also turns back to green and is relabelled "Join Waiting List"

Search Screen

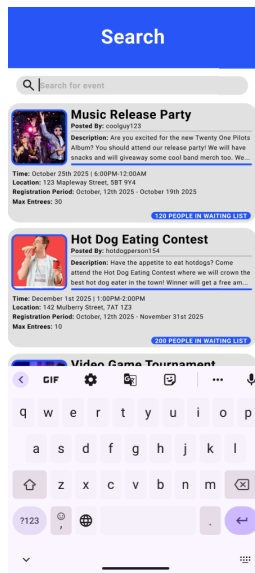

When a user goes to the search menu they are initially shown a list of events. The user also has a search bar and QR button on the screen. Like the home menu, the user can press on events which show more details on the events.

The search bar can be pressed to browse for specific events

The QR button can be pressed to scan event QRs

Search Bar

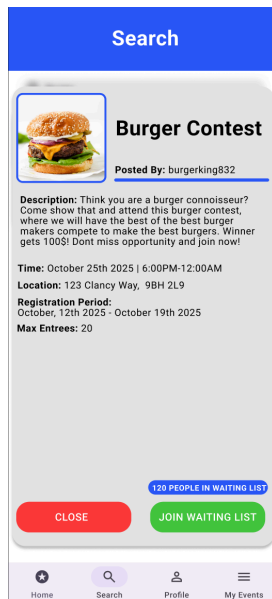

When the search bar is pressed, the keyboard pops up and the user can search for an event they desire. User can press the enter on the keyboard to search

Search Bar Results

Results of search are shown, user can press on the event to view more details

Clicked Event Screen

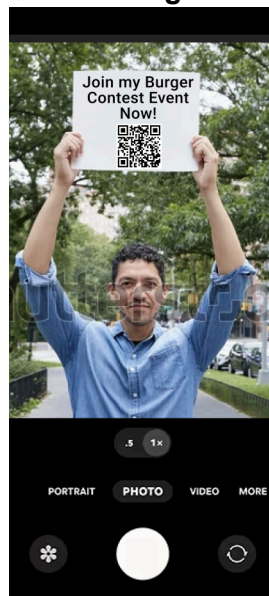

The event that is pressed has more details shown: Shows event's title, full description, time, location, registration period, max entries, and people in waiting list.

User given option to

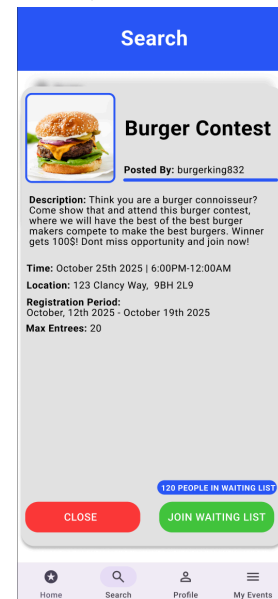

- Close the details of the events, which takes them back to the list of events they searched for
- Join Waiting List which adds them to the waiting list of events and places the event in "My Events"

QR Scanning Screen

When QR Button is pressed, it opens the phone's camera, which allows user to scan for an Event QR. If valid QR, gives user details of the events. If invalid, tells the user the QR code is invalid.

Valid QR Event Screen

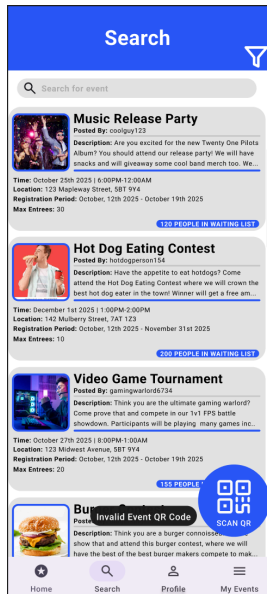

If the QR scanned is valid, the event's details are shown: Shows event's title, full description, time, location, registration period, max entries, and people in waiting list.

User given option to

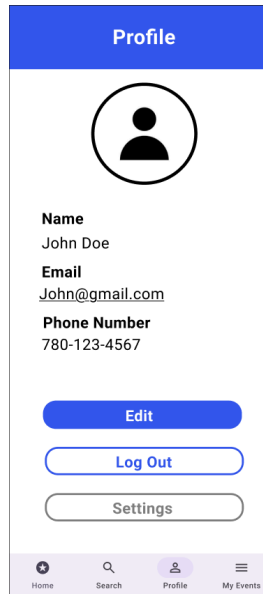

- Close the details of the events, which takes them back to the list of events they searched for
- Join Waiting List which adds them to the waiting list of events and places the event in "My Events"

Invalid Event QR Screen

If the QR is invalid, a toast will show up indicating the QR is invalid, and takes them back to the search menu
